Along the riverside, there are a lot of pandanus.
Now, the life style of the people is changing from rural to urban.
Some people in Bangtoei have retained pandanus weaving skills but few continue to practice them as an economic viability because of the time and difficulty associated with collecting the pandanus, changing to commercial work.
The local wisdom related to pandanus leaf mat and pillow weaving indicates the way of life, social capital, cultural capital and the rich natural resources of the people in this region.
Pandanus

- The pandanus has the scientific name Pandanus Kaida Kurz.
- It can be grown as an ornamental plant or fence line or for a wind break.
- It can be used as a medicine for gonorrhea and kidney stones.
- Pandanus fruit can be eaten.
- Traditionally it is used for weaving and handicraft products.

They hope the young generation can inherit this local wisdom and know the value of this local wisdom so it can be preserved for the future.
The Chairman of the Bangtoei Elderly Club has made efforts to preserve this local wisdom. He supports some of the budget to encourage this wisdom by seeking out new markets for pandanus products produced by members of the Elderly Club.
Wat Donwai school is the only school in the area that has been teaching the wisdom of pandanus leaf weaving as a subject for Thai students in Matayom Suksa III.

All local people and government agencies should make determined efforts to preserve this wisdom because the local wisdom of each area creates the foundation for local capital. This can then be used to fund local and national development.
